

Learning from Global Experiences

The School of Public Health hosted a session for Bachelor of Public Health students on 24th July 2025 with Ms. Anya Ganesh, an undergraduate at McGill University. She shared her academic journey, interdisciplinary training, and global health experiences, highlighting the role of social sciences in public health. Ms. Ganesh also discussed her summer research on the AnkaSmartchatbot, an evidence-based digital platform improving sexual and reproductive health information.
